STRIKERS

Attack a Crowd of Employees of the Brown Holsting Works.

Pitched Battle Takes Place, in Which Thirty Shots Were Fired.

A striker and one non-union man fatally wounded, and a striker and a workman seriously injured—these were the results of the pitched battle between strikers and employees of the Brown Holsting Works.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 18.—In a pitched battle Friday afternoon between striking employees of the Brown Holsting Works and a party of nine workmen returning home, four men were shot—two fatally.

The fatally injured are George Plumb, one of the Brown Co. workmen, George Larson, a striker.

Those less seriously hurt are: Al Caldwell, an employee, shot in the right leg and shoulder; Paisley, striker, shot in the left shoulder.

Several bystanders were hit by the flying bullets, but their names have not been learned.

The outrage was one of the culminating features of the great strike party, which was held at the Brown Holsting and Conveying Machine Co. June 30 last. Two lives had already been sacrificed in the trouble, and for weeks the works have been under military and police protection, and the 300 non-union men escorted to their homes by armed officers.

Several hundred strikers were put up a big fight to beat the Brown company, but failed.

Friday night a party of ten strikers went to the corner of Wade Park and East Madison street, and laid in wait for the workmen who came by that way home from the Brown works. There were nine men in the little group of workmen with their driver party. Without a moment's delay the strikers rushed from behind a saloon, where they were in hiding, and with a cry of "Shoot," began shooting into the crowd. A few of the workmen were armed and returned the fire.

The battle lasted about three minutes, in which about thirty shots were fired, when the strikers fled. When the police arrived, in response to a riot call, several arrests were made among the strikers.

Ever since the trouble began the strikers and their sympathizers have carried on a guerrilla warfare against the men who took their place. They have assaulted them, stoned their houses and boycotted them at the stores.

About a week ago the five companies of militia were withdrawn from the Brown works and the police protection taken away. The strikers are now in a state of confusion and were refused and since then have become doubly revengeful.

YAOQUI INDIANS.

Taken Prisoners in the recent raid, executed by Mexican soldiers.

NOGALES, A. J., Aug. 18.—Three of the Yaqui Indian prisoners who were captured after the recent raid on the 12th inst., were quietly taken out of town Friday afternoon by a squad of Mexican soldiers and taken to the Yaqui reservation. They were given a hearing Friday morning and acknowledged their connection with the raid, but pleaded that they were not the principal participants by their chiefs. Several invitations were issued to American officials by Mexican officials to visit the reservation, but otherwise the killing was secret, and no one knew when the men were taken out, nor where the execution took place. The prisoners are Indians now in prison here are likely to receive similar treatment. The Mexican authorities continue to bring in suspects, and there are now six confined in the Nogales jail.

INSANITY.

Should the Supreme Court Decide Against Her, His Friends Will Claim That He Was Insane at the Time of Committing the Murders.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—It is stated that should the supreme court decide his case against his friends, the case of Durrant, convicted of the murder of Blanche Lamont in the Emanuel Baptist church, will bring the case up again on the grounds of insanity. They say that Durrant, who was also accused of the murder of Minnie Williams, was sick for six weeks prior to the murders, during which time he was delirious, that he was never himself after the sickness and was therefore mentally irresponsible when the crimes were committed. The case will probably not be heard by the supreme court before January next.

A Woman Can Be Appointed Treasurer. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 18.—Attorney General Maloney, replying to the query, "Can women be legally appointed township treasurers?" Friday renders the opinion that she can. He holds the law provides that "No person can be declared ineligible for election, profession or employment, except military, on account of sex." A township treasurer is appointive, and women can hold the office, and are properly qualified. This is a new ruling, and of importance throughout the state.

American Pharmaceutical Association. MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 18.—The American Pharmaceutical Association decided Friday to send greetings to the international exhibition of pharmacists to be held in Prague, Austria, from August 15 to September 1. The report of the committee on president's address supported the executive officer in his plea for the adoption of the metric system of weights and measures. It also favored the demand for rebate of duty on alcohol.

Public Building at South Beach, Ind. WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The treasury department Friday for the erection of the public building at South Beach, Ind., handling Bree & O'Neil, Indianapolis, Ind., at $36,000, were the lowest bidders.

POLITICAL MENTION.

It was announced Friday that one fare for the round trip has been secured for those who will attend the convention of the national democratic party in Indianapolis September 3. The sale of tickets at half rates will begin August 20, and will continue until the tickets will be good for leaving Indianapolis as late as the midnight of September 17.

Robert F. Keating, for 16 years Nevada representative on the national democratic committee, died at Virginia City from hemorrhage of the stomach. He was well known in national democratic circles.

After a deadlock of two days and one of the closest political contests of the year, Judge John F. Rixey, of Culpeper, Va., was nominated as judge for congress of the democrats of the eighth district of Virginia.

The deadlock in the Eleventh Michigan district republican convention was broken early Friday morning when W. T. Neske, of Ann Arbor, was nominated on the 38th bid of Avery's strength was thrown to the successful candidate.

The Monticello club, the democratic club of New Haven, Ct., has closed its doors. It is said the club is in financial straits and that there is a conflict in the club's management between the gold and silver elements of the party. Judge Lynde Harrison is president of the club.

Alex. Truitt, editor of the New Haven Union, had a conference with Mr. Bryan in reference to a Bryan day at New Haven, Ct. Mr. Truitt says that Mr. Bryan told him that the campaign managers insisted that he take a rest for ten days, that he go to the country where no one could get at him and where absolute rest could be certain.

A call has been issued by Dr. R. A. Mowbray, of Birmingham, Ala., state chairman of the Reed faction of the Alabama republicans, for a state convention of his faction of the republican party, to be held in Birmingham, September 3, for the purpose of nominating a republican electoral ticket in opposition to the ticket nominated by the McKinley faction of the party.

The democratic congressional convention at Salem, Mo., nominated Hon. Edmund K. Ross, of Kansas, as a candidate for congress in the Thirtieth district.

The Bourbon News, democratic, of Park, Ky., Friday belittled the nomination and platform of the Chicago democratic convention.

It is not at all unlikely that a combination ticket will be put in the field by the republicans, national democrats and populists in some of the southern states. The executive committee of the national democratic party is in receipt of propositions looking to this.

ARTHUR GARDNER

Breaks the World's Record for the Mile.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 18.—The races of the National A. A. W. meet Friday in the finishes and the time bordered the sensational record of the mile, the important world's record, the one mile competition, was broken. The one mile national championship was held so far as the present progress of the circuit is concerned. It was won by Tom Cooper.

Arthur Gardner did the record breaking in the mile open, with 13 starts in the race. Earlier role the mile in 2:01, beating the record of 2:01.43, established by Rald just a week ago at Buffalo. He won by a phenomenal sprint the mile, which he entered ten lengths behind Sander, who led the field. Chairman Udger stated after the race, that it was the most rapid burst of speed that he had ever seen or heard of. Cooper was not entered in this race.

In the mile national championship, Cooper, who won, had the closest call of his front wheel. Beat Owen Kimble some the tape only half a diameter of his front wheel. Kimble, the others being lunched behind. The first serious accident of the meet occurred in the five mile state championship. J. C. Mitchell's chain broke and he fell, Karl Thome, the Kentucky champion, changed position, left over him and landed three others on Mitchell before he could rise. The latter's collar bone was fractured in two places.

down again. Same doctor. Same physical anguish. Same medical war. But now the sickness is more protracted, the liver more obstinate, the stomach more irritable, the digestive system more rebellious. But still, with the same medical skill, he gets better. And forth, commits the same sacrilege against his physical health. Sometimes he wakes up to see what he is doing, and he realizes that he is destroying his family, and that his life is a perpetual perjury against his marriage vows, and that this broken-hearted woman is so dependent, from the rosente wife he married, that her old schoolmates do not even realize that she is a doctor.

Na. We are told distinctly that all missionary and evangelistic influences will be ended forever, and the good, having passed up to their beatific state, all the morally bankrupt will be together, and where are the salvable influences to come from? Will a speckled bad apple put in a barrel of diseased apples make the other apples good? Will one who is down be able to lift others up? Will those who have miserably failed in the

Are you to blame? You would only make yourself abhorred before God and man to send that another invitation. For 20 years has been declining your offers and doing insult for kindness and courtesy and can he blame you? Can he send you up to your house on the night of a banquet? Looking up and seeing

AUNT LIZZIE STUTELY.

Venerable Colored Woman Who Has Met Many Celebrities.

When Young, she Belonged to the Band of the Four Hundred of Antislavery Days.

[Special Washington Letter.] Stories of the body servants of George Washington are at last becoming known. Men and women, white or black, lie beyond the age of usefulness, when their teeth disappear and their eyes grow dim, when their noses and cheeks hold ruddy mottles, they no longer claim to have seen and known George Washington. That test of old age has passed away with its unbecoming adjuncts.

Elizabeth Stutely is very old, but she never claims to have seen Washington. She remembers the capture of Washington by the British during the war of 1812, but she was only a little girl, and remembers it only because it was a day when she was constantly for many years afterwards.

Aunt Lizzie, as she is known to all her friends, does not know when she was born. She knows she was born in Maryland, but has selected the Fourth of July as her birthday, and always celebrates it from that standpoint, rather than as a national holiday. She says that some one told her when she was young that the Fourth of July was a better day than any other in the year, and she selected it as her birthday.

"I belonged to the Randolphs," says Aunt Lizzie. "I was raised in the best family in Virginia, and my friends have always been white folks. I don't know how to read, but I know how to talk. For my old mistress I worked from sunrise to sunset, and at evening I learned the talk of the field hands than the average slave. I was raised with the white folks, and I talk as they talk. I know what grammar is, but I never was taught anything out of books, except the big book. I can tell you all about it. I can read the Bible, and I believe in it, too. The Bible is all I know. I know that when I am dead, and I am just remembering the words that my preacher sometimes tells me I can repeat more to it than he can. But it doesn't make any difference whether I listen and just remember the words, or when a slave gets free could not read, that is education enough for the black folk. The use of the words, and the made laws which make my eyes clear with the white race, but I don't believe in those laws. God's law was that the descendants of them should be servants, and they are the best servants in the world."

"That is the philosophy of a very intelligent old woman of the African race. She must be nearly 100 years old. She is growing stout, heavy, and it is difficult to move about, but she has a wonderfully brilliant brain. She has beautiful gray kinky hair, and is as neat, tidy, cleanly and as kind as any woman I ever knew. With whom she was raised. She says: "One thing I learned was that it is never proper to speak ill of the dead. I was in the lot of the dead, and I saw a great deal of the great general Robert B. Lee. If I should tell what I saw and heard and know of him, his home, and his family, and his picture; but I have never told anything that I learned in slavery concerning my people, and a new world. But Gen. Lee was not a perfect man who have opportunities and power to be bad, but few men are good, especially to women."

"I belonged to the Randolphs before the war," continued Aunt Lizzie, "and along without the help of the white folks. I was punished sometimes, but generally when I did something to deserve it. Mistress Eaton once got after me when I interfered in the punishment of one of the children, and I went and had myself locked up in jail. That was a sure way for any intelligent colored person to call attention to his or her rights."

"I knew Gen. Jackson very well, Mr. O'Neill had a fine farm way out in the country. It is now covered with the finest residences in Washington, and Connecticut avenue, the fashionable street of the northwest, runs through the old farm. There is Dupont circle, the British embassy, the Stewart castle, Blaine's mansion, the home of Senator Sawyer, and the palaces of Leiter and others who have come here with their millions. The old farmhouse is gone; but I remember it very well. There was a splendid well near the house, with an old-fashioned pump. Gen. Jackson used to ride out there on horseback, take a drink from the pump, and then sit on the veranda by the house, talking about everything that was going on."

"President Van Buren was a peculiar man. He was always very solemn, and seemed to have too much on his mind, or else that his mind wasn't big enough to carry all the things that were in the world. President Polk was a speaker of the house of representatives, and he was a jolly man with his white friends. I seldom noticed any of the colored people, and I called me Lizzie whenever he saw me. He knew the other servants by their names, but I was his little girl. President Pierce was a handsome man and very popular; but he sometimes got too much liquor into him, and he was not so good as the others. He was always gentlemanly and polite to everybody, and I often heard people who said him say: 'What a pity he drinks too much,' or words like that. They said that he was a great orator and a good president."

I saw very little of President Buchanan. He was not so good as the others, or else that his mind wasn't big enough to carry all the things that were in the world. Some people are perpetually invited out to dine, not because they give many diners in return, but because they are recognized as the most popular people in the neighborhood. There are others who must be asked as a duty, on account of the dinner. I never thought of the dinner as the right of a hostess to a hostess, but she has to include their names among the list of her guests. She knows very well that their presence will call for a night of work to keep the whole dinner from being 'out of hand,' and that they will probably outweigh all her efforts—Philadelphia Telegram.

A good many hundreds, and even thousands, of long-suffering husbands can bear sorrowful testimony to the fact that the strong men of the world are the wives of their husbands subject them to every time they put on their hats to go out in the evening. "Oh, I'm just going out for a few minutes." "Oh, now here in particular." "What for?" "Oh, nothing." "Why do you go, then?" "Well, I want to go to that lady's." "Do you have to go?" "I don't know that I do." "Because." "Because what?" "Well, simply because." "Why do you go so long?" "I'm going to be gone long." "How long?" "I don't know." "Why do you go so long?" "Well, it's strange that you can't be content to stay at home for a few minutes. Don't you be gone long, will you?" "No." "See that you don't." "I don't know. I don't know how many marriages are a dead, flat failure and failure—Chicago Chronicle.

With cold water a kettle containing large, ripe pineapples, and then till water. Drain off the water, and when the fruit is cool pare it, remove the leaves, and cut into slices half an inch thick. Lay the slices on a round hole in the center of each slice; weigh the fruit, and to each pound allow a pound of loaf sugar. Cover the bottom of the dish with the sugar, on this place a layer of the pineapple, and so on until the dish is full, finishing with the sugar. Set the dish aside in a cool place for 24 hours, then drain the slices from the sirup, put the sirup in a bottle and boil till the sugar comes to rise, skimming carefully, put in the pineapple, and let it stand 15 minutes longer—Good Housekeeping.

These legends are great many which things read about that lady in the newspapers, but I seldom heard good things read about her. She went to her grave very poor, and I was her best friend. She was beautiful, and she was warm-hearted, too. She did lots of good in the world. Her beautiful daughter, Miss Madge, married Eliza, a daughter of the navy, and her other daughter, Miss Virginia, married a foreigner in the diplomatic service and went to Europe. I never saw her again. She was a splendid harpist, a wonderful singer, and a woman of very high character, as well as in face and figure. People talked about her, too, but they talk about all women who are beautiful. I heard the play Hamlet once, and I remember that Hamlet told a beautiful lady in the play that no matter what she did, she could not escape calamity. That's true, indeed, I believe. Generally, however, it is the women who are beautiful, and it is hard for them to get

DINNER-GIVING ETIQUETTE.

Points to Be Observed by Both Hosts and Guest.

The dinner is the most important of social ceremonies. It is a function, an observance, a solemnity, the most flattering form of entertainment that can be offered to a guest; and as such it should be duly respected and appreciated. The art of giving dinners that are at once dignified, delightful and distinguished, is a rare one, yet it is possible. It is with a more expeditious of time and pains so well laid out that it is a marvel that such dinners are the exception and not the rule. As a rule, the dinner is regarded as an affair of reciprocity, and people who do not give dinners themselves are not seldom asked to dine, except in the case of young girls or bachelors, admitted chiefly to stop a gap. Dinner-giving is the most costly form of hospitality when it is largely indulged in, and people who cannot give dinners as they should be given had much better not attempt them at all, but confine themselves to the most entertaining and economical luncheons, breakfasts and ordinary "at homes." The dinner is the one social function in which the host is always in the foreground, and his name appears with hers on the invitations, and he dispenses hospitality in the same ample measure as herself. As a guest, whether the invitation be his part of much of his ancient glory in the way of earving heavy dishes and passing wine, he is still the holder of the dinner, and must maintain the dignity which that position entails.

The length of a dinner invitation varies with the size and importance of the dinner. A large and important one two weeks' notice is required, and this notice is sometimes extended to double that time. For small and informal dinners, from five to ten days' notice is sufficient. Printed cards may be used, on which blanks are left for the names of the host, hostess and guests, and the time and place. These cards are, as a rule, only used when the dinner is one of ceremony. Invitations to small dinners are generally written in the form of a letter, and are written in the third person. If it is a friendly and impromptu matter, in any case, whether the invitation be in the form of a letter or not, it should be answered within 24 hours after it has been received. Dinner-giving is usually a matter of civility, and it is in all-important to have a certain number of guests to eat upon and to select them with discretion. It is essential to allow a hospitable time to invite other guests to fill the places of any who may disappoint her. An invitation to dinner, like a loan, should be given with a certain number of host and hostess, though, of course, the hostess gives the note, if a note conveys it. The answer must be polite and courteous, and if the person is mentioned in accepting or regretting. The invitation may be sent and answered either by post or by the hand of a messenger.

Some people are perpetually invited out to dine, not because they give many diners in return, but because they are recognized as the most popular people in the neighborhood. There are others who must be asked as a duty, on account of the dinner. I never thought of the dinner as the right of a hostess to a hostess, but she has to include their names among the list of her guests. FROM THE OZAR TO THE QUEEN.

The First Embassy Sent from Russia to England, in 1856.

"At this moment it may not be uninteresting to know that it was during the reign of the first czar, Ivan IV., surnamed Grozin (i. e., the Terrible), that the first embassy was sent from Russia to England. It was a mission of friendship and negotiation between the two countries. It was in 1566 that the first official embassy was sent from Russia to England, and a 'discourse of the honorable reception into England of the first ambassador from the Emperor of Russia in the year 1566' was printed by one of the first printers of the reign.
